Our team of skilled engineers and technicians ensures that each capacitor meets the highest ...

I have been curious about what makes a "quality electrolytic capacitor" for a while, especially after having to replace caps in amps that have failed. In another recent thread I saw "F& T" recommended, but no measurable reason given. Replacements I have done I tend to find the target uF, but if possible replace the prior 85degC with 105degC, and slightly higher ...
